Artist Dan Woodward Presents Impressions of the Civil War in Missouri

Nearly 25 drawings and oil paintings of the Civil War by Missouri artist Dan Woodward will be on display at three Scenic Regional branches this spring. Mr. Woodward will also give a special presentation at the branches about the free exhibit. The drawings and paintings depict the home front, soldiers' camps, and battles from the Trans-Mississippi Theater of the American Civil War.

Dan Woodward, an internationally-shown artist, takes pleasure recording the quickly vanishing world of natural wilderness and historical identity. His current project, Impressions of the Civil War in the West, is currently touring Midwest art galleries, historical societies, and universities. As a former member of the 101st Airborne in 1960s Vietnam, Woodward found firsthand what it was like to be a soldier, and through art has endeavored to capture images of the Civil War in the West from the Mississippi River to Picacho Pass, Arizona, as performed by living history reenactors.

Visit www.woodwardartstudio.com for the exhibit schedule and other information about the artist.

Six Libraries to Join Missouri Evergreen in 2017

In 2017, six new public libraries will join the Missouri Evergreen consortium. As a result, Scenic Regional patrons will have access to these libraries' collections. The libraries include Festus Public Library, Trails Regional Library (Warrensburg), Jefferson County Library, Douglas County Library, Livingston County Library (Chillicothe), and Texas County Library. Trails Regional and Jefferson County are comparable to Scenic Regional, in terms of collection size. The new libraries will increase the membership to 35. Currently, the Missouri Evergreen consortium has the third-largest collection and third-largest interlibrary loan traffic in the state, after only Mid-Continent Public Library in the Kansas City area and St. Louis County Library. The consortium expects commitments from additional new members in the coming months.

Children at the Union branch had so much fun getting up close and personal with the critters from the World Bird Sanctuary! "Critters for Kids" was presented at every branch in February.

Mobile Printing Now Available at Scenic Regional Branches

The library received an LSTA grant through the Missouri State Library for new print and time management software called Cybrarian which replaced Envisionware. The new software also provides seamless wireless printing from mobile devices, such as Smart phones, tablets, iPads, laptops, and other mobile devices to the library's public printers. A mobile device or laptop must be connected to the library's Wi-Fi network to access wireless printing. The library does not require a password or library card to access its wireless network. The library charges 15 cents per page to print a document. The mobile printing feature went live at all branches in early February. Instructions for using wireless printing can be found on the library's website at: www.scenicregional.org/wirelessprinting.

Library Staff Attends Active Shooter Training

On January 31, the library provided active shooter training for all full-time staff systemwide. The four-hour training session was held at the Union branch and presented by Franklin County Sheriff Steve Pelton. The next step for the library will be to create an action plan specific to each location.

Warren County "Read, Build, & Play" featured Lincoln Logs and Legos. This proud, young patron poses with her building she created during the program.

During St. Clair's "Knitting 101" individuals were taught how to cast on, the knit stitch, and cast off. All of the ladies did a great job!

Library Advocacy Day Held in Jefferson City

February 7 was the Missouri Library Association's annual Library Advocacy Day event. Library Board President Carol Leech, Director Steve Campbell, Business and Human Resources Manager Kjersti Merseal, Union Branch Manager Diane Disbro, and Warren County Branch Manager Madison Morris represented Scenic Regional Library at the event.

In the morning an orientation for attendees was held at the Missouri State Library. Secretary of State John R. Ashcroft spoke at the orientation and State Representative Justin Alferman received the "Bud" Barnes Award for the 2016 library legislative advocate of the year.

In the afternoon, libraries met with their local legislators. Representatives from Scenic Regional met with thirteen state representatives and senators, primarily about state library funding. Many of the legislators were very supportive, including State Representative Justin Alferman, who serves as vice chair of the appropriations committee.

The state budget revenue is down between $450 million and $750 million this year. As a result, the budget proposed by Governor Greitens includes significant cuts which could impact state library funding. Secretary of State John R. Ashcroft, who oversees the Missouri State Library, has proposed a complete restoration of the state library funds to pre-2016 levels. The difference between the Secretary and Governor's recommendations represents a difference in nearly $3 million in state library funding; Scenic Regional Library could lose close to $100,000 in state funds under the Governor's budget proposal. However, the governor's proposal is only a recommendation to the legislature. The legislature's budget proposal will be released in the spring.

Stories Matter to Hold Family Kick-Off Event at Union Branch

Stories Matter is having a kick-off event for children at Scenic Regional Library's Union branch on March 11 at 2:30–4:00 pm to celebrate diverse storytelling. The event will feature storytellers and activities. The target audience for the event is children who are preschool and lower elementary school-age.

Stories Matter is a campaign created through a partnership between Neighbors United Undoing Racism, the Social Justice Committee at East Central College, and Scenic Regional Library. The goal of the campaign is to provide books with diverse themes and characters to libraries and families throughout local communities. Stories Matters has been working toward having 15 children's books with diverse themes and characters donated to each Scenic Regional branch. In addition, the campaign provides discussion guides to support and facilitate conversations about race, ethnicity, and identity.

For additional information, contact Leigh Kolb at East Central College: leigh.kolb@eastcentral.edu.
