systems.

Spencer said expanding the rights of gun owners has been a core issue for him since he was elected to office.

"I don't think we should put citizens in harm's way by making them an easy target," Spencer explained.

Other bills sponsored by Spencer include:

HB 549 — Authorizes municipalities to annex small, low-population pieces of unincorporated land enclosed within their boundaries, without voter approval;

HB 608 — The "Right to Remember Act," which would protect historic military monuments, including those from both sides of the Civil War. Prohibits local agencies or political bodies from removing, modifying or concealing any state historic military monument without approval from a state board. Spencer also proposed a state constitutional amendment to the same effect;

HB 611 — Prohibits the use of automated traffic enforcement systems; and HCR 24 — Encourages public schools to institute Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps programs.

Sen. Jeanie Riddle

State Sen. Jeanie Riddle has sponsored a range of bills in the Senate, some of which promote broad changes to public safety, while others are aimed at more subtle improvements.

Several of Riddle's bills focus on improving the safety of children. She has proposed pro-in 500 feet of athletic facilities used by children. Other changes being pushed by Riddle include new protections for the victims of child sex trafficking.

Riddle is the chairperson of the Senate's professional registration committee, and has several proposals to ensure service people are qualified for the important and sometimes dangerous work that they do. For example, Riddle's Senate Bill 303 would add a licensing requirement for people performing radiation therapy or radiologic imaging, such as X-rays.

"A number of individuals have testified about problems," Riddle said. "Right now, people in Missouri who do medical imaging don't have to take a single course in radiation safety." The senator said technicians who haven't been through medical courses are the biggest concern for potential mistakes that could put a patient's health at risk.

Riddle said she wants to make the licensing changes without negatively impacting rural health care. Changes to other professional licensing and training requirements balance limited government interference with ensuring protections for the public, she said.

"There's a lot of tweaks here and there that will make lives better for Missourians and business owners here."

Other bills sponsored by Riddle include:

SB 34 — Establishes a commission to oversee the training standards of county coroners;

SB 36 — Modifies certain rules relating to legal immunity of real estate licensees in the performance of their work.

of sale for a person to sue damages related to a defective product;

SB 101 — Creates a statewide hearing aid distribution program that could collect donations to assist low-income people with obtaining hearing aids;

SB 102 — Allows motorcyclists to be driven on the shoulder of a highway if traffic has slowed below 30 mph;

SB 138 — Requires the state auditor to advise auditees how to improve deficiencies in their audits;

SB 204 — Allows fees to be charged for psychologist license applications and changes some other license provisions;

SB 304 — Modifies requirements for the Missouri Secretary of State's office;
