Art Exhibit June 23 At New Haven Library

Art by a mother-son duo will be featured in an exhibit at the New Haven Scenic Regional Library Branch on Sunday, June 23.

Painting and photos by Suzanne Behle and her son Ward will be on display from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Scenic Library branch at 200 Douglas Street.

"I started painting to save my sanity after three children," said Suzanne. "After five children, I went back to college, changed my major from medicine to art and got a degree in art and photography." She noted that she has always loved photography and is now able to slow down and use some of her photos as an inspiration to paint once again.

Suzanne stated that she really doesn’t have a style, but tries to honor and capture whatever strikes her spirit so she can share what she sees and hopefully help others see things as well.

Ward graduated from New Haven High School in 1996 and then began his formal art education studies at Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg. He initially studied commercial art (illustration), but after teaching conversational English in France for a year he decided to become a teacher.

Several years later, he returned to CMSU to earn his education degree and a master of arts in teaching.

Since 2010, he has taught in the Pettis County R-V School District. He began his tenure there teaching art to grades 7-12. Six years ago his responsibilities extended to teaching K-12 art. In addition to his teaching duties, he helps adults prepare for the high school equivalency exams. "Making my own art remains important to me," noted Ward. "I take as many opportunities as possible to paint, sculpt and draw. As evidenced by my artwork, I remain deeply enamored by this world and joyfully accept my place in it!"

This is the fourth annual art exhibit hosted by the New Haven Friends of the Library. There is no admission fee.
