NEA Big Read Author Visits Union

Scenic Regional Library and its partners—Washington Public Library, East Central College, and the East Central Literacy Council—concluded their NEA Big Read grant on November 5. The keynote program included a performance by Early Music Missouri, “Scenes and Songs from William Shakespeare’s England”, and an interview with Station Eleven author Emily St. John Mandel. Mike Thomas, morning show host and program director for KFAV and program director for KWRE in Warrenton, conducted the interview. After the interview, the author answered questions from the audience and signed books. Approximately 140 people attended the program, which was held at East Central College’s John Edson Anglin Performing Arts Center.

The goal of the NEA Big Read was to get as many people in the community reading and discussing the same book. Station Eleven, a post-apocalyptic science fiction novel, was selected as the library’s NEA Big Read selection. The library and its partners presented 64 programs related to the themes in the novel, such as Shakespeare and survival skills. The programs were attended by 1,495 people.

Fifteen programs, including the keynote, were held at the Washington Public Library and East Central College. Forty-nine programs of those programs, including book discussions, were held at Scenic Regional Library branches, which were attended by 901 people.

NEA Big Read is a program of the National Endowment for the Arts in partnership with Arts Midwest.

Missouri Evergreen Collection Surpasses 3.3 Million Items; Largest in State

Scenic Regional Library patrons will soon be able to request books, music CDs, audiobooks on CD, and DVDs from a public library collection exceeding 3.3 million items. On December 2, Barry-Lawrence Regional Library will join Missouri Evergreen. The two-county library system is located in southwest Missouri and will be the consortium's 45th member.

With the addition of Barry-Lawrence Public Library, Missouri Evergreen surpasses Mid-Continent Public Library (3,323,565 items in 2018) as having the largest public library collection in Missouri with 3,334,297 items. St. Louis County Library reported having 3,012,055 items in 2018. The Barry-Lawrence Regional Library will add 26,539 patrons and 198,651 items to the Missouri Evergreen consortium, which already serves 729,323 residents.

Missouri Evergreen is a statewide resource-sharing consortium launched by the Missouri State Library for public libraries in 2012. Scenic Regional Library has been a member since January 2014. In the 2018-2019 fiscal year alone, Scenic Regional borrowed and lent over 117,000 items with other Missouri Evergreen member-libraries.

Five additional public libraries are scheduled to join Missouri Evergreen in 2020, including Montgomery City Public Library. Scenic Regional Library Director Steve Campbell currently serves on the Missouri Evergreen Board of Directors, and served as the organization's president from 2016 to 2018.

Staff Development Day

The library's branches were closed for its fifth annual staff development day on November 1. Unlike in the past, where the event consisted of multiple break-out sessions on a variety of topics, there was a single presenter this year. Ryan Dowd, an attorney, activist, and director of Illinois' second largest homeless shelter, presented the "Homeless Training Institute." The presenter's fees were paid entirely by a grant through the Missouri State Library. Mr. Dowd presents to libraries all over the country on the topic.

Seventy-seven Scenic Regional staff members attended the event, along with guests from other public libraries, including Missouri River Regional Library, Trails Regional Library, University City Library, and Washington Public Library. Becky Wilson, Public Library Services Consultant with the Missouri State Library, also attended the session.

Union Friends Group Holds Fundraiser

On November 12, the Union branch Friends of the Library group held a naming rights auction event at the branch as a fundraiser. Union was the library's eighth branch to hold an auction.

Individuals, businesses, and organizations were able to bid on the naming rights for thirteen areas in the new library for one year. The areas which were available for naming were the three outdoor patios; three meeting rooms; three study rooms; adult, teen, and children's reading areas; and the service desk.

The winning bidder for each area will have a 22" x 28" full-color, framed sign placed in the area with the name of the individual, business, or organization, along with a photograph or logo. Bidders may also name an area in honor of a loved one, or in memory of someone. Bidding for each area began at $150.

The event raised $3,250. They also sold $1,200 in donor wall books and $140 of raffle tickets at the event. After expenses, the event raised $4,500. Funds from the event will go toward additional programming, equipment, and other items at the Union branch.

Wine and spirits were provided by Pinckney Bend Distillery and Blumenhof Winery. Music was provided by local musician Mike Rufkahr. David Sutton served as the auctioneer.

"Runnin' with the Devil: A Backstage Pass to the Wild Times, Loud Rock, and the Down and Dirty Truth Behind the Making of Van Halen," by Noel E. Monk

"Runnin' with the Devil" is the perfect summer read for any 80's music fan! It takes you behind the scenes of their infamous tours and wild escapades to their coming of age and crazy behavior, which eventually lead to the undoing and breakup of the band. It's a fun rock memoir to read, and reminds me of waiting in line with my friends to get tickets to all our favorite bands over the summer!

"These Honored Dead" by Jonathan F. Putnam

Are you a fan of Sherlock Holmes, John Watson, and maybe even Abraham Lincoln? I came across a series I absolutely love that has the same dynamics of friendship, respect, mystery, and now history. The series is called The Lincoln and Speed Mysteries by Johnathan F. Putnam. The first book, "These Honored Dead," is a book about Abraham Lincoln and his real-life best friend Joshua Speed set in the Historical Fiction Genre. After you read the book the author explains the research he compiled to write the book and how factual the books really are. I found that part fascinating.

The book begins with Lincoln and Speed meeting in Springfield, IL and becoming friends (before Lincoln ever thought of becoming President). We get an insight into what Lincoln was like as a young man with humble beginnings but a determination to go into Law. Speed is from a wealthy family and decides to move to Springfield, IL to find his own way as a shop keeper. Their lives are intertwined when someone close to Speed is murdered and he and Lincoln work together to solve the crime and bring the murderer to justice, even though this will be Lincoln's first murder trial. The whole series has a Sherlock/Watson feel that I felt very intriguing. It will keep you on your toes and you will feel the friendship between these two, it is a great book and fantastic series.

Volunteers have outdone themselves this year for the Fall Booksale. Friends of the Library ran the book sales at most branches to raise money for their groups. The money raised is used to support their Scenic Regional Library branch.

“Neither Wolf Nor Dog: On Forgotten Roads with an Indian Elder,” by Kent Nerburn

American history books begin in 1520 with the landing of Englishmen on the continent. The preface may include Italians and Spaniards in the 15th century and a nod to Icelanders in the 10th century. But the indigenous people of the North American continent are ignored except to describe how their existence impeded western expansion by Europeans.

A Lakota man living on a reservation in the western Dakotas asked Kent Nerburn to tell the story of his people in a way that would strip away stereotypes. Dan talked and Kent had to change his frame of reference to grasp a non-Western European world view. Kent's truck broke down while on his second visit to the rez and Dan, Kent, and Dan's friend Grover took to the road while the truck was being fixed. The land and the people they met along the way spoke for themselves as Kent began to understand what Dan was telling him.

I picked up a copy of this book in an independent bookstore in Flagstaff, Arizona, when I was on vacation. Northern Arizona is rich in Native American history and I wanted to learn more about it. Reading “Neither Wolf Nor Dog” in conjunction with visiting museums and Pueblo sites, listening to Native Americans speak about their lives, and traveling in land foreign to a Midwesterner opened my eyes to a culture I know little about. I recommend Nerburn's book to anyone interested in understanding indigenous people who are very real and very much alive and active in America.

“An Object of Beauty” by Steve Martin

I read “An Object of Beauty” by Steve Martin, last November, and to this day I still pick it up and reread my favorite parts. The book is everything a person needs to change their view on life. The story is told from the perspective of the friend of Lacey Yeager. Lacey is an up and coming women of the art industry. You follow Lacey as she experiences all New York has to offer. Lacey charms men and women, old and young, rich and even richer with her magnetic charisma and liveliness. The book takes you through triumphs and tribulations as the new generation takes hold of a large industry. It is the type of book to make any one dream of Cities as well as the times of Italian renaissance. The book changes your view on people, and beauty. You learn to appreciate and cherish what you hold most dear, as Lacey begins to lose herself to this magnificent business. Her ascension to the highest tiers of the city parallel the soaring heights--and, at times, the dark lows--of the art world and the country from the late 1990s through today. Steve Martin perfectly captured the lows and highs of the American dream in the career of one woman.

Staff Spotlight: Nathan • Library Assistant, New Haven Branch

How long have you worked for Scenic? Six months.

Have you held any other positions at Scenic? No.

What made you want to work in a library? I retired from education a few years ago, and the opportunity to work at my local library was an offer that I just couldn't refuse.

What is your favorite part of the job? I'm happy to be a part of the system that provides community members access to so many resources and so much entertainment.

What do you wish more people knew about the library? In addition to the books, DVDs, and CDs that we have on our shelves, we have about 3 million more items that we can get for them by request within a week or so.

What upcoming program at your branch are you excited about and why? I'm looking forward to an upcoming program being planned on Black History in New Haven.

What are you currently reading or what are you reading next? I'm reading Any Other Name, the tenth book in the Longmire series.

What is your favorite book? Why? That's a really tough question for me because there are so many books on so many topics that are of interest to me. My favorite is probably an old collection of quotations and inspirations that my mother gave me years ago. When I think of it, I think about how my mother always inspired me to succeed.

Is there anything else you would like people to know about you, your job, or Scenic Regional Library? The library is a great place to spend some time, regularly. And there are people like me in every branch who are happy to help people find something enjoyable.
