

straight talk about our racial identities is essential if we are serious about enabling communication across racial and ethnic divides.

FOR ADULTS (FICTION)

“Americanah,” by Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie

A young woman from Nigeria leaves behind her home and her first love to start a new life in America, only to find her dreams are not all she expected.

FOR KIDS (FICTION)

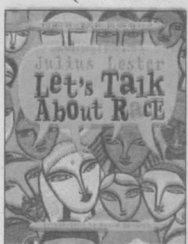

“All Kinds of Friends,” by Shelley Rotner

Explores the many kinds of friends children have in their lives with photographs and simple text.

FOR KIDS (NON-FICTION)

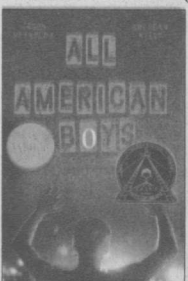

“Let’s Talk about Race,” by Julius Lester

Introduces the concept of race as only one component in an individual’s or nation’s “story.”

FOR TEENS (FICTION)

“All American Boys,” by Jason Reynolds

Two teens—one black, one white—grapple with the repercussions of a single violent act that leaves their school, their community, and, ultimately, the country bitterly divided by racial tension. Written in tandem by two award-winning authors, this tour de force shares the alternating perspectives of Rashad and Quinn as the complications from that single violent moment, the type taken from the headlines, unfold and reverberate to highlight an unspoken truth.

Steinbeck garden selected as July Garden of the Month

The Owensville Garden Club has selected the Lillian Steinbeck garden, located at 610 East Lincoln, as their July Garden of the Month. The home is located behind Legend’s Bank. Lillian has been interested in flowers and gardening all of her life. The wide variety of plants — annuals, perennials and various shrubs — displayed on all sides of her home testify to her love for beauty and nature.
