Lashley's daughter, Haley, is diagnosed with autism and had Hambach as a teacher until she graduated several years ago. When Ham-

dents don't have to heat a pot on the stove just to wash their dishes.

Aaron Holiway, co-owner of American Oasis, said his company is donating the labor for the remodel and plans to do much of the work over Christmas break.

The school hopes the kitchen renovation will provide a facility similar to what students might

Those willing to help would be doing a big favor for Wright City's special needs students, and as Lashley's daughter Haley pointed out, also for the teacher who makes a difference in their lives.

"Ms. Hambach's the best teacher you can have," Haley said.

MU Extension hosting hemp workshop Saturday

University of Missouri Extension is offering a workshop on the emerging industrial hemp industry in Missouri.

MU Extension field specialist in horticulture Justin Keay said speakers will include MU Extension specialists, the Missouri Department of Agriculture's hemp program director, Missouri Hemp Trade Association representatives, and hemp growers and processors. Keay said it is important that growers understand the investment costs and potential risks before entering this new market.

Keay said speakers will give a legislative summary and regulatory update and cover topics such as agronomy practices and pests, industry outlook, crop enterprise budgets, processing, contracts and more.

The workshop runs 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16, at the MU Extension Center in Warren County, 107 W. Walton St., Warrenton. Register online at extension.missouri.edu/warren or call 636-456-3444 by Nov. 14. Contact Keay at Justin.Keay@missouri.edu or 314-400-7388 for more information.
